Honesty is the Best Policy

In the park

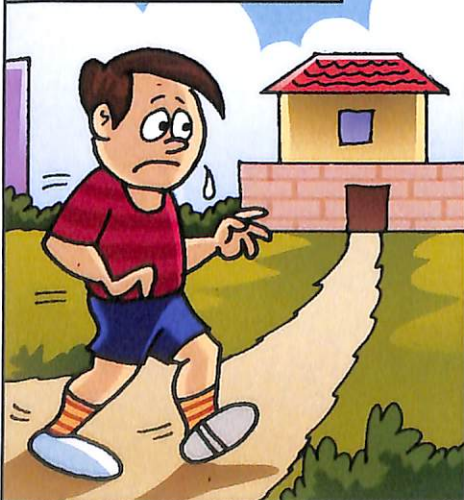

Raju, you never bring your own ball. From today onwards, we will not play with you.

Now you can come to play only when you bring your own bat and ball.

Raju comes home with tears in his eyes thinking of the numerous times he had asked his father to get toys for him.

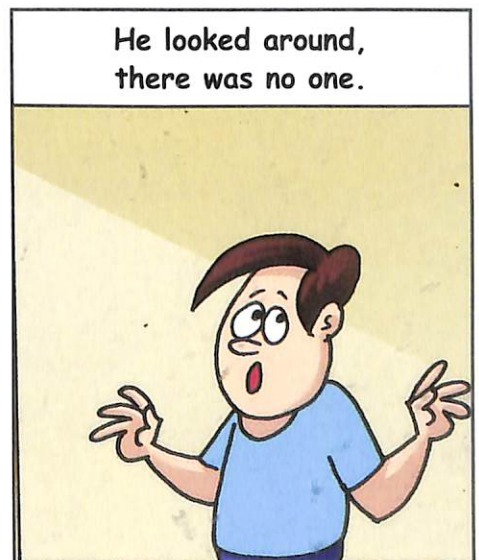

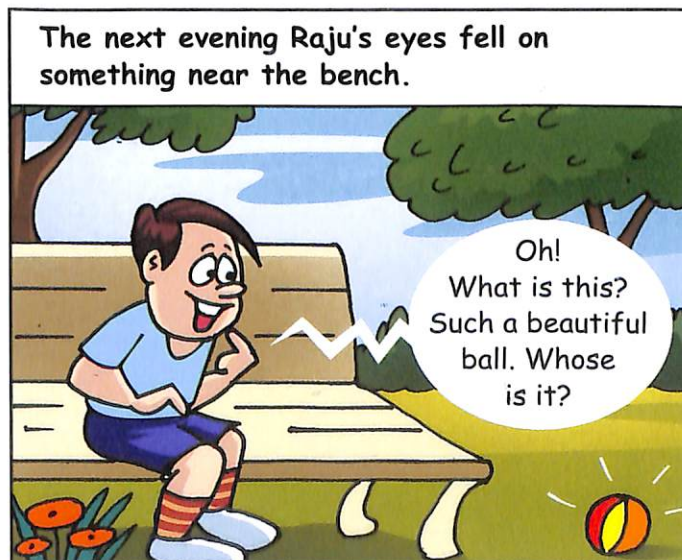

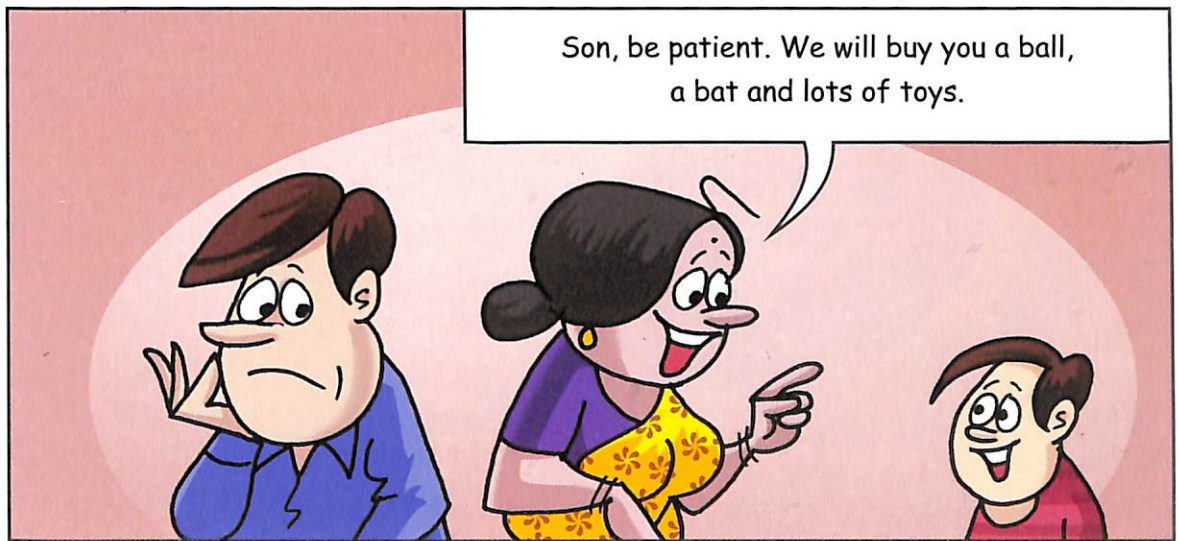

All the children play with such nice toys.

At least get me a bat and a ball.

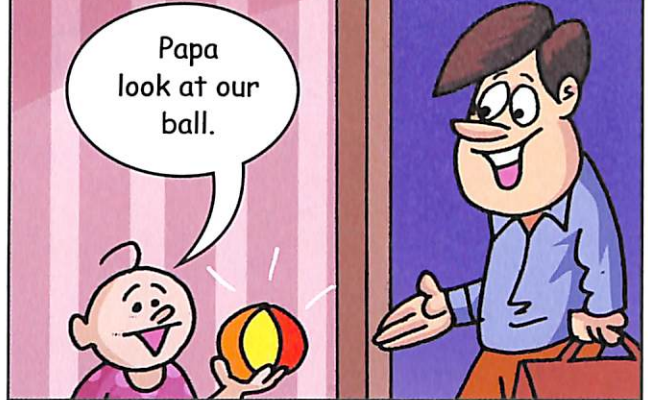

Why shouldn't I take it for myself and my younger brother Kaju.

That Evening

Papa look at our ball.

It is so beautiful.
Who gave you this?

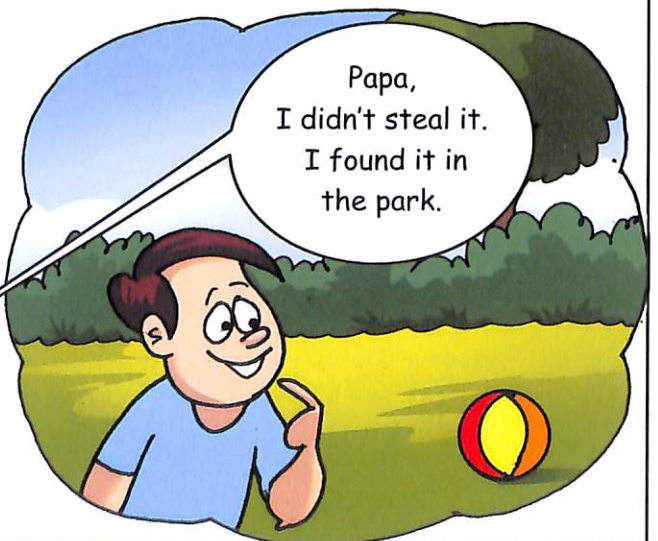

Raju Bhaiya.

Raju, Where did you get it from?
Tell me the truth.

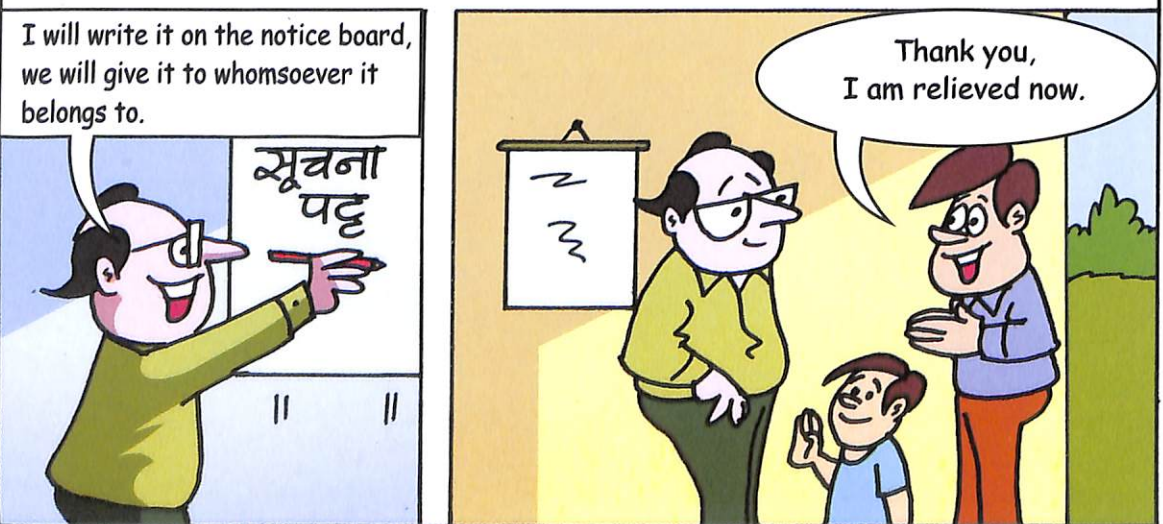

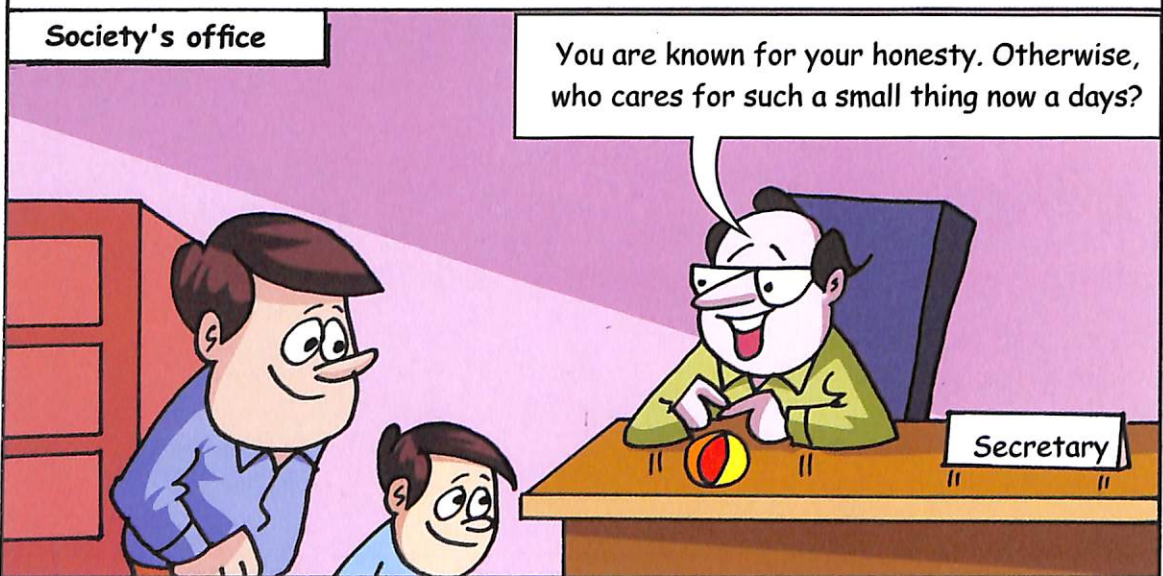

Papa,
I didn't steal it.
I found it in the park.

The next evening

Raju, why are you sitting at home? At this time you should be playing in the park.

No one wants to play with me.

Never mind, you can practice "running" there.

Remember, you should pay equal attention to your studies and to your sports.

It keeps the mind and body healthy.

Only then you will be able to perform well.

Raju started running every evening

A month later

No maa.

Raju, are you not forgetting something?

Same evening

Then

Republic Day Celebrations are being organized in the Society
on Sunday.

Oh wow! The MLA
of the area is the chief guest.
We will definitely participate.

Award for being the most honest resident of the colony and for that I invite Raju and his father on stage.

Chief guest hands over a gift hamper to Raju which included a bat and a ball.

Raju's happiness knew no bounds.

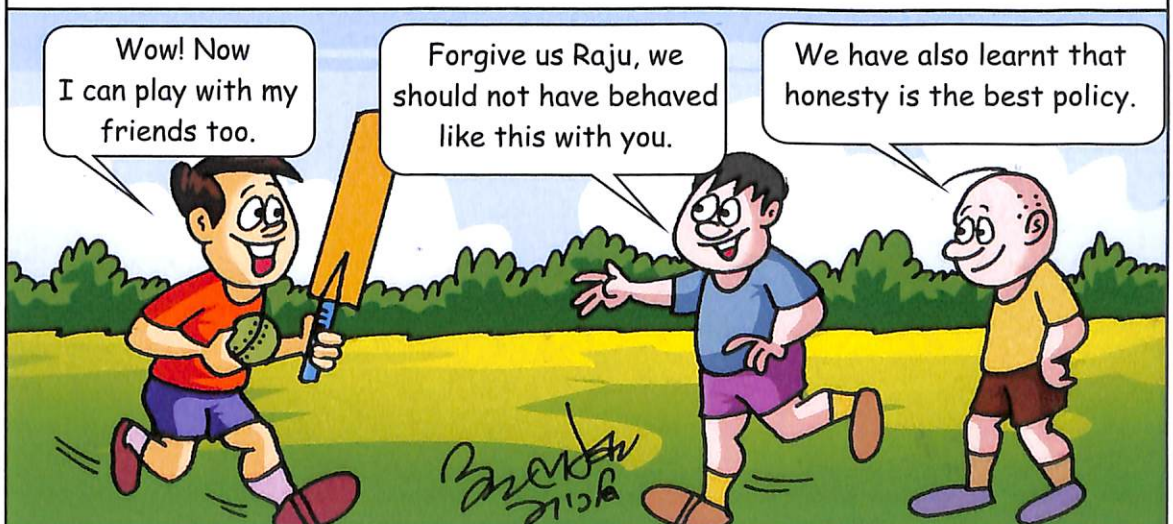

Not only because he got the prizes for himself but also he was happy for his father whose guidance helped him to get two awards.

Wow! Now I can play with my friends too.

Forgive us Raju, we should not have behaved like this with you.

We have also learnt that honesty is the best policy.

HONESTY IS THE BEST POLICY

- Being honest means following the path of Truth. It says more about our character and our values than anything else.
- Honesty leads to moral strength.
- Honesty brings confidence and courage to speak the truth.
- Trustworthy and reliable relationships can be built only on the foundations of honesty.
- Let us choose the path of honesty and make our life more meaningful and more credible.
- Let us also inculcate the virtue of being honest in our children who are the future citizens of the Nation.
